

The vertical separation rule of 2,000ft. at FL 290 and above should remain as it is. Reducing vertical separation will allow airlines to plan more flights. As a result, air traffic congestion will continue rising. I think the number of controller's handling these aircraft should also increase since more aircraft will be flying.